ELECTRIC IRON ALMOST CAUSED HOUSE FIRE

Raton, N. M., Aug. 19.—As a warning to those who may have a similar experience some day, one citizen of the city tells of the following occurrence last evening which was most dangerous in its probable outcome and most fortunate in its termination.

About four o'clock this morning the foreign resident smelled pine burning and hastened to the kitchen to find that an electric iron, which had been left attached with the "juice" still turned on, had burned through an inch ironing board, through an equally thick table top and was on its road toward the floor when discovered.

The wood was rapidly becoming incinerated and the live coals would doubtless soon have spread the fire to the rest of the house had not the foreigner been discovered in time.

One or two other experiences of this kind have been recorded during the past few months and the suggestion is given that great care be exercised by those possessing electric irons that the plugged plug cord be disconnected immediately after use.
